

PerBlue is seeking a full time game developer to join our software startup.

The Position: You will be a software developer on a game project and work side by side with artists, designers, marketers, and tech support. If you are passionate about gaming and are interested in large distributed server systems, network stacks, web applications, game mechanics, artificial intelligence, client side development, or user interface implementations this job is for you.

Strong programming and technical skills are a must. Game development experience and experience in Java, C#, ASP.net, Android, Objective C, iPhone development, Ruby, and JavaScript are all pluses.

This is a full time position paid in salary + stock and is based in Madison, WI.

About Us: PerBlue is a mobile and gaming software company based in Madison, WI. We are a cross collaboration team of engineers, artists, designers, and marketers. We are a fun and young company and are propelled by ideas and innovation in which everyone is able to contribute.

We are true Generation Y entrepreneurs and have grown up on the cutting edge of technology. We were those kids down the street that you would ask to fix your computer, and we have been writing code as long as we could write longhand. In a time when most of our friends do not have answers to the dreaded "What's next?" question, we created our own company and are having fun doing what we love.

Interested? Let us know. We want to talk with you. Please include your résumé.
